Teaching Agriculture On Farms Is Success

Instructors Now at Work in All States, Says University of Illinois Professor

URBANIA, Ill., Dec. 9 .- The newest set of agricultural teachers those who go to the farm boys at their work in the open country-are making a great hundred or more members of the opsuccess, according to A. W. Nolan, assistant professor of agricultural extension at the University of Illinois.

The energetic work of many promia farm project under the supervision of the teacher.

"A teacher of agriculturs literally lives with his boys during the summer months, directing their work, study nad business in connection with their farm projects. The boys in these dusses are usually organized into vacational clubs, under which auspices rips are taken to sales, fairs, universities, agricultural exhibits and good farms. All of this reacts to the moral and social, as well as the vocational and agricultural education of the boys.

"For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1920, nearly 2 000 schools had established departments of vacational agriculture and 45,000 boys had enrolled in the work, carrying on the farm practice as required. The Federal board reported for the year that the income from the projects of the boys carrying on the farm practice was approximately $1,000,000, a sum of money larger than the Federal grant to the states for carrying on the work in agriculture."

Playwrights Send Agent British Society Seeks Information on Copyrights

LONDON, Nov. 25.—The committee of management of the incorporated Society of Authors, Playwrights and composers is sending G. Herbert Thring, the society's secretary, on a mission to Canada, in connection with the question of colonial and international copyright.

Mr. Thring also hopes to visit the United States. A large amount of property is held here by English authors and dramatists and great difficulties arise from time to time in dealing with United States publishers, managers, editors and agents.

Consequently the committee feels that it is essential for some representative of the society to gather information on the spot and to arrange for the efficient conduct of the society's business in protecting the interests of its members. tion on Copyrights

Social Season at Height

Special Dispatch to The Tribune LAKEWOOD, N. J., Dec. 11 .- Unusual in that it showed no evidence of the slackened interest in social affairs which so often follows Thanksgiving holidays, the week in Lakewood was an interesting one both socially and otherwise. Contributing to the calendar of activities were numerous informal affairs at various cottages, in addition to events at the hotels. The sessions of the Association of National Advertisers, which were held not so confining as to deprive the three sion at the University of Illinois.

"Since the passage of the Smith-Hughes vocational education act in 1917, teachers of agriculture are now at work in all the states of the Union,"

Professor Nolan said. "These teachers are employed for twelve months in the year. They are paid partly from local fundus uand upartly from local funds granted by the vocational act.

"Under the provisions of this law, all students enrolling in vocational agriculture, with teachers thus employed, must carry on for six months of the year, as a required part of their course, a farm project under the supervision of the teacher.

"A teacher of agriculture literally."

The energetic work of many prominent persons in the recent successful Red Cross drive has awakened no little interest in support of charitable projects. This interest is finding expression in the preparations for one of the most notable events to feature the holiday season here—the Yuletide musicale for the local hospital to be given in the Laurel House.
